

PORTFOLIO TIPS:

- Keep your site clean and simple, keep the focus on your work
- Remove any work that's not up to your current standards. Better to have a small number of high quality examples, rather than a high quantity of projects of varying quality, or outdated projects (photographer example - may have taken thousands of photos to get to the few that are actually good, but your audience will assume all of your work is at this level. AKA don't be afraid to kill your children)
- Use actual real world examples when possible - photos of the product, event, apparel etc. in the real world
- If no real world examples, digital mockups are your friend, there are currently lots of ways to pursue this both native in Illustrator, using PSD mockups, download from sources like YellowImages.com etc.
- Don't just show the final product, show your process, and the final result - more on this in the "process" lesson.
- Shouldn't be an archive of everything you ever made - that can be part of your website, but not what your portfolio does.
- If the portfolio piece you want to share doesn't exist, create it! Show your specialty without waiting for permission.
